LIVING WELL IN RETIREMENT
MANAGING YOUR INCOME AND EXPENSES
TIAA-CREF: FINANCIAL SERVICES FOR THE GREATER GOOD

TIAA-CREF is dedicated to serving the retirement needs of those in the academic, medical, cultural and research fields. With our strong nonprofit heritage, we subscribe to guiding principles directly influenced by the people we serve.

We are committed to seeking consistent, long-term performance and solid returns. We strive to keep our fees low to help our participants maximize their investable assets and ensure more of their money is working hard for them. We offer personalized, objective advice by noncommissioned consultants* to help ensure our participants’ best interests are always being served. And most importantly, we leverage our knowledge and expertise to provide retirement income solutions that guarantee our participants won’t outlive their income.

The mission we embarked on in 1918 still rings true today. We are there when our participants begin their careers helping others. And we will be there to guide them to and through their retirements.

* Our consultants receive no commissions. They are compensated through a salary-plus-incentive program.
 Guarantees are based on the claims-paying ability of the issuer.

SEE YOUR RETIREMENT “BIG PICTURE”

What will the next phase of your life look like? One way to get your arms around planning for your retirement is to put a stake in the ground and decide when you plan to retire and what you expect to do during retirement.

Whether you’re months or years away from retirement, once you’ve got a retirement date in mind, you can start mapping out a plan to make your transition from working life to retirement life smoother and easier. You’ll want to pick a date when you’ll be not only financially ready, but also mentally and emotionally ready, to bid farewell to the “traditional” workweek.

ENVISIONING RETIREMENT

So what’s your vision of the perfect retirement? Do you see yourself spending more time with family, volunteering, traveling or pursuing new hobbies? Or do you picture retirement as a “second act” professionally, during which you may go back to school, change careers or continue to work in your current career?

Depending on how you answer, your particular vision can have a big influence on what your income needs will be once you actually retire. One vision may have you spending money on new priorities or passions; another may have you bringing in money from new income sources.

And, again, retirement planning isn’t just a matter of crunching some numbers. You also need to prepare yourself for what it will be like to leave your workplace community and the personal, social and professional benefits it provides. To ensure that your transition into retirement is a happy one, you need to make plans for how you’ll spend your time, not just your savings.
ASSESS YOUR INCOME VS. EXPENSES

How much will you need and where will it come from? A common rule used by financial planners is that you’ll need 80%–90% of your preretirement income during retirement.

Your retirement income will probably come from several sources. Now is a good time to take inventory of those potential income sources and evaluate how much each one will be able to contribute toward your total retirement income. Typical sources of income include:

- Social Security
- Pension plans
- Employer-sponsored plans, such as 403(b) or 401(k) plans
- IRAs
- Personal savings

CREATING YOUR BUDGET

To get an idea of whether or not you’ll have enough income to meet your needs, create a retirement budget. You can base your budget on current essential and discretionary expenses, but you should consider how major lifestyle changes — such as relocating to an area with a lower cost of living, downsizing your home (or buying a second one) or starting a new career — might impact your income requirements.

If you choose to continue to work on a part-time or consulting basis, you should include that anticipated income along with your other income streams.

Your budget should also take into account one area that you might not have as much control over: health care. Health care costs have increased significantly in recent years, a trend that’s likely to continue. While rising health care costs may not affect you very much now, they could affect your income or savings in the future.

One way to predict how much of an impact health care costs will have is to find out about your employer’s health care benefits for retirees. You can also research what you’d expect to pay for private health insurance, if you need to go that route, and long-term care insurance. And you should look into what benefits Medicare will provide and what those costs are projected to be when you retire.

Thanks to improvements in medicine and lifestyle choices, today’s retirees are often living longer, more active lives than retirees in previous generations. But greater life expectancy means your retirement savings may need to support you longer than you think, so lowering the risk of outliving your money should be a part of your plan.

LOWER THE RISK OF OUTLIVING YOUR SAVINGS

Perhaps the most difficult question to answer while you plan for retirement is how long you will live. For a couple age 65 today, there is a 50% chance that one will live to age 92 and a 25% chance that one will live to age 97.*

PREPARE FOR THE UNEXPECTED

It’s a good idea to keep some cash available and easily accessible in a money market or savings account. One good rule of thumb is to keep enough aside to cover all your living expenses for one year. A retirement “emergency fund” can help you ride out a long downturn in the market by giving you another source of income so you aren’t forced to sell longer term investments at a loss.
Although one can never be certain of longevity, there are ways you can plan to make sure you don’t outlive your savings. Planning to fund a long retirement could mean working part-time, taking a more aggressive investment strategy or setting up income choices, such as a lifetime retirement income, that help ensure you won’t outlive your savings.* You can also minimize retirement savings withdrawals to help reduce the risk of running out of money.

TIMING IS EVERYTHING

It helps to understand the basic rules governing pension plan distributions and other tax-advantaged retirement products. The U.S. Tax Code discourages you from taking money out too soon (before you retire) and from leaving money in savings for too long (not meeting the minimum distribution rules).

The timeline to the right gives a high-level overview of milestones in retirement planning, so you can see how tax laws and distribution requirements might affect your decision making. See Pages 10–11 for more details on some of the retirement income choices presented here.

Making the right income choices means striking a balance between the federal tax laws and your personal goals for retirement.

DECIDING WHICH ASSETS TO ACCESS FOR RETIREMENT INCOME FIRST

Another important part of your planning process is deciding which retirement assets to convert into income streams and when. As a rule of thumb, you may want to wait as long as you can to collect Social Security and first draw from the savings on which you paid taxes.

DRAWING ON YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS

You can start collecting Social Security benefits as early as age 62 and as late as age 70. Bear in mind that if you collect early, your benefits won’t be as large. The longer you work, and the later you collect, the higher your monthly benefits will be.

ACCESSING TAXABLE VS. TAX-DEFERRED ACCOUNTS

In most cases, it makes more sense to withdraw from the taxable accounts for which you pay income taxes on interest and dividends every year. You may as well spend down those accounts earlier in your retirement in order to leave your tax-advantaged retirement accounts to continue to grow tax deferred (or, in the case of Roth IRAs, tax free).

There are sometimes exceptions to this rule, so be sure to check with your tax advisor to confirm that you’re using a withdrawal strategy that’s appropriate to your particular situation.

Any guarantees under annuities issued by TIAA are subject to TIAA’s claims-paying ability. Payments from the variable investment accounts will rise or fall based on investment performance.
The tax information contained in this brochure is not intended to be used, and cannot be used by any taxpayer, for the purpose of avoiding tax penalties that may be imposed on the taxpayer. It was written to support the promotion of the products and services addressed herein. Taxpayers should seek advice based on their own particular circumstances from an independent tax advisor.

As with all securities, your accumulations can increase or decrease, depending on how well the underlying investments perform over time. TIAA-CREF does not guarantee the performance of the underlying investments.

DETERMINING HOW MUCH YOU CAN WITHDRAW FROM YOUR PORTFOLIO EACH YEAR

Another rule of thumb is that you generally want to withdraw no more than 4% of your total retirement savings every year. Withdrawing more increases your risk of spending too much too early in retirement, and being caught short in your later years. Capping withdrawals at 4% also helps ensure that you can increase your income later on to meet increased expenses due to inflation.

KEY MILESTONES IN RETIREMENT PLANNING

- AGE 59½: Any withdrawals from tax-advantaged plans are no longer subject to 10% federal penalty
- AGE 62: Age at which you can receive partial Social Security benefits (benefit is reduced by 25%)
- AGE 65 TO 67: Depending on your date of birth, age range at which you can receive full Social Security benefits; no reduction in Social Security benefits no matter how much you earn after this age
- AGE 70½: You are required to start taking withdrawals from certain tax-advantaged retirement accounts; failure to comply can result in large federal penalties (waived in 2009)
- AGE 75: You are required to make withdrawals from any funds exempt from the age 70½ rules, barring certain criteria
- AGE 90: You must begin to draw income from any after-tax annuities

TIAA-CREF CAN HELP YOU EVALUATE YOUR INCOME CHOICES

Contact one of our consultants for a personalized Retirement Planning and Advice session. We can look at all of your anticipated income streams, along with your estimated income needs, and devise an income strategy that lets you spend your money in retirement with confidence. We can also build in the flexibility to make changes to your strategy — and how you take income — in case your retirement vision changes.

FIND OUT WHAT YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS WILL BE

You should receive a projection of your benefits from the Social Security Administration about three months before your birthday each year. You can also call 800 772-1213 or visit www.ssa.gov for help in determining when you should begin collecting based on your retirement income needs and life expectancy.
Over time, inflation can significantly reduce the purchasing power of your retirement income. Although diversifying your investments does not guarantee that you will keep pace with inflation, you can counter its effects by investing in assets that provide the best opportunity for growth, such as stocks, real estate and inflation-linked bonds.

CONSOLIDATE YOUR SOURCES OF INCOME

You can simplify investing and management of your accounts by gathering your savings and investments together in one place.

With everything in one place, you’ll have a better overall picture of your financial situation. This can significantly ease the process of planning your income strategy in retirement as well as reduce the time you spend managing your finances.

Have you worked for different employers during your career? You may have left behind money in those employers’ workplace retirement plans. In addition, you may have other traditional IRAs you’ve opened outside of a workplace plan.

You can simplify the management of those IRAs — and potentially gain more flexibility and investment choices — by consolidating them into a single IRA.*

If you want the broadest range of investment choices in one account, consider a TIAA-CREF Brokerage Services account or add a brokerage feature to your IRA. If you prefer to make investment decisions yourself, a self-directed brokerage account allows you to buy, sell and hold a broad selection of asset types, including stocks, bonds, CDs and thousands of mutual funds from many well-known fund companies. Some of the benefits of using our brokerage account include:

Consult with your own advisors regarding your particular situation.

- A large number of mutual funds with no load and no transaction fees, but other fees may apply
- Features and options to help you maximize your money and your time, such as a cash management account, automatic dividend reinvestment, direct deposit, electronic funds transfer and margin loans
- Valuable research and other resources to help you make investment decisions

GUARANTEED LIFETIME INCOME
One way to add stability to your retirement is by establishing a steady flow of income with a lifetime annuity. Lifetime retirement income is one way to receive payments from your tax-deferred retirement plans, and create a base income that you cannot outlive. You can also use money from your taxable plans to set up a lifetime retirement income stream.

KEEPING A DIVERSIFIED PORTFOLIO
While investment returns are never totally predictable, you can smooth out the inevitable bumps in a volatile market by choosing a diversified and appropriate asset allocation strategy — and making sure your portfolio is regularly rebalanced to reflect that strategy.

Taking a balanced approach to your portfolio, which spreads your investments across a mix of asset classes that include stocks, bonds and real estate, can form the foundation of your retirement investment strategy. Studies show that this approach can increase the likelihood that your portfolio will grow enough to last a lifetime while meeting higher income needs created by inflation. It is also important to keep in mind that diversification does not guarantee against loss.

STAYING ON AN EVEN KEEL
As you near retirement, it’s natural to feel concerned about preserving the nest egg you have worked so hard to grow. While you may want to move toward a more conservative asset allocation to reduce volatility in your savings, there are risks in being too conservative. Set up an appropriate mix of investments that fits your need for both income stability and continued growth — and stick with your strategy. Overreacting to day-to-day market activity on a frequent basis can be harmful to the long-term health of your retirement portfolio.

The model portfolios presented here were not created specifically for you and may not take into account your particular retirement goals or investment preferences. The ultimate allocation decision is up to you after you have considered investment information that pertains to your own personal circumstances. The specific asset allocations generated by TIAA-CREF are based on well-known optimization techniques, using historical return, volatility and correlation data from indices like the Russell 1000. Keep in mind, this optimization procedure is based on assumptions about historical market data, and future market conditions may vary from these assumptions.

If you have a Retirement Annuity, lump-sum cash withdrawals and transfers are not available from TIAA Traditional and must be made in 10 annual installments. With a Group Retirement Annuity, you can take lump-sum withdrawals only within 120 days after you terminate employment, but there is a surrender charge. All other withdrawals and transfers must be made in 10 annual installments or spread over a five-year period after you terminate employment.

INTEREST-ONLY INCOME: OFFERS INCOME TODAY WHILE PRESERVING YOUR SAVINGS FOR TOMORROW
- Provides income from your workplace plan’s TIAA Traditional annuity, but is limited to the account’s interest, leaving your principal balance untouched

MINIMUM DISTRIBUTION INCOME: A WAY TO MEET FEDERAL REQUIREMENTS AT AGE 70½
- Can help you meet federal withdrawal requirements while leaving as much as possible in your tax-advantaged accounts so your savings can continue to grow

FIXED-PERIOD INCOME: INCOME OVER A SPECIFIC PERIOD OF TIME
- Similar to lifetime retirement income, but differs in that it provides income for a set period of time*
